

Monumental Improvement project

Tehidy Round is one of over 30 scheduled monuments which are being worked on by the Monumental Improvement project, around the Cornwall AONB. The site is a bit of a mystery, but it is thought to have been an Iron Age round. This would have been a farmstead enclosed by a circular bank and ditch. There are the remains of hundreds of these which have been fossilised into landscapes right across Cornwall. It also could have been adapted later on in the medieval period as the Tehidy Manor Pound. Here animals which had strayed from adjoining manors were impounded until a fine was paid by their owners. This site suffers from scrub encroachment and also from some visitors who do not respect it.

Use your map reading, GPS or "What Three Words" skills and the clues overleaf, to navigate our for fun GeoHunt. To aid you in this, you may need an Ordnance Survey map of the area or a GPS application and hardware. You can also use your smart phone with a copy of "OS Locate" or "What Three Words" which are free downloads from the App Stores. Or you can just walk the trails unaided and keep an eye out for the clues overleaf. GOOD LUCK!

Please enjoy the site and the beautiful landscape it sits in. But please leave it all as
